
Workshops for writers fiction and non-fiction

Motivating Yourself for Freelance Success

One goal of this workshop is to help you find the drive you need to move yourself and your writing business toward greater profitability

Workshop leader Nate Hendley is one of those lifetime writers, driven to put pen to paper from childhood, through high school and into university. He will discuss, both from a personal view and from a psychological angle, what motivates writers.

He will show you steps you can take in your home office to improve your motivation and give tips from his success with “pitch letters” to editors and publishers.

Who should attend

This workshop will benefit you if you are a freelance writer who doesn't have time to wait for the muse to strike, or if you are a new freelancer ready to make writing your real business.

Who's the Boss? Motivating Yourself for Freelance Success

Is your freelance writing business on hold because you just can't seem to get up the drive to make those extra calls and do the follow-up that keeps the jobs flowing?

This workshop will show you how to break through that malaise and get on track.

Workshop leader Nate Hendley will discuss motivators, and de-motivators provide tips to those new to freelancing and offer exercises designed to bring back your drive.

This workshop is based on Nate's recently published book, Motivation for (Non-fiction) Writers.
